

Teaching Literacy in English to K-5 English Learners

THE CASE FOR CHANGE

- English learners lag behind their native English-speaking peers in reading achievement.
- Without strong reading skills, English learners will not be able to reach challenging standards.
- Many English learners are not being taught to read in English until they are able to speak in English.

LITERACY

English learners can learn to read in English at a rate comparable to native English speakers

WHEN

...they are taught to read in English from their first day of school (with or without reading instruction in their native language).
